

Andromeda Supports The Internal IT Department for Two Sister Manufacturing Companies

This manufacturer now has managed servers, databases and consultation partner.

This manufacturer in Chicago, Illinois has a small internal IT department that needed an expert team to support larger projects.

They had outgrown their email system and internal servers. They were also running into issues because of outdated hardware and needed 24/7 support.

Now, this manufacturer knows they have an IT partners that can jump in and assist with any task. They have a secure wireless network and are prepared for growth.

I can turn to them if there's a situation I can't handle.

The biggest benefit for me has been that peace of mind.

The Challenge:

This manufacturer is a small IT department, and wanted a team to help with projects outside of their skillset.

- They needed reliable wireless internet
- Hardware upgrades, new servers
- 24/7 IT support

The Action:

Andromeda has added peace-of-mind to the internal IT department. They know that there is a team to turn to if there is ever a situation that they can't handle internally. For instance:

- Consultation on hardware purchases
- Created a reliable wireless network
- Support 24/7 with a local team that knows the network, system and business
