Digging into insights for rapid iteration

The rapid iteration that OST has guided in our digital transformation strategy is now understood by the executive corporate leadership as a best in class example. In the past we've not been able to be this fast. In fact, it could take weeks, if not months, to complete one version. We've learned a lot from OST in regards to being truly agile.

OST's work to develop the cloud infrastructure, data analytics, and systems architecture for Live OS has been outstanding. Not only have they helped us to provide our customers with robust, data-driven insights, but they did so in a manner that combined the highest standards for information security with a deep respect for end-user privacy.

Alex Cammenga | Sr. Program Manager for Live OS

OST had a vision from the beginning to get Amway to stand on our own two feet. Our OST partners were there every step of the way and were just as passionate about the success of the product as the Amway team. In the end, everyone identified with the Sky team and project.

When that data is in OnCommand, that's where OST comes in, supporting all the servers, drives, software and apps. People can create and have lots of data, but OST has mined the data and made it presentable for the right party to take value from it.

As a key partner, OST worked closely with Hennepin Healthcare to ensure success of our data center migration project which was well executed and seamless. I was very impressed with their technical expertise and process in creating value to our clinical operations through a very technical project.
